AMERICA'S MESSAGEDELIVERS TO EMPEROR WILLIAM
CONGRATULATORY NOTE
IN BEHALF OF UNITED STATES.

AN EPOCH OF PEACE

Twenty-Five Years Without War is Germany's Record Under Emperor William.—Friendly
Answer to English-
men.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, June 16.—One of the first delegations received by Emperor William today to congratulate him on the attainment of the 25th anniversary of his reign was that headed by Andrew Carnegie. The Americans
presented to the emperor an address
signed by a large number of their countrymen. The address was in part
as follows:

An Era of Peace.
"To His Imperial Majesty, the German Emperor, on behalf of organizations and societies which represent
the effort of American citizens of every section, creed and race to advance the cause of civilization, we venture to express to your Imperial Majesty our congratulations upon a reign notable in countless ways in none more so than in the maintenance
of twenty-five years of unbroken
peace between Germany and the other nations of the world.

Andrew Carnegie.

"The memorable words of your Majesty shortly after ascending the throne, 'The peace of my country is sacred to me,' came both from the heart and the head. Sacred indeed
the peace, the order and the prosperity of the German people have been. More than once during the last twenty-five years it has been
the high privilege of your Majesty not only to exercise peaceful forebear-
ance, but to inspire it in others.

"We beg to tender our thanks to your Imperial Majesty for what you have done to prevent war and to advance the coming of the day when there shall be peace upon earth, to men, good will.

Premotor of Progress.
In addition to the preservation of peace, we know well that every department of government has received
and is receiving your sympathetic cooperation. The remarkable developments in the commerce, and the industries of Germany and the improvement of agriculture are due much to your Majesty's judicious and unweary-
ing efforts.

"Those of us engaged in the development of the industries, the commerce, the education, the science
and arts of your country and in promoting as far as lies in our power
the brotherhood of men, unite in expressing to your Majesty our sense
of obligation for the example of your
reign of twenty-five years has set.
We congratulate your Majesty upon
the notable advance made by Germany in every field of human effort
during your peaceful, prosperous, and civilizing reign. Long may it continue unbroken."

Answers Englishmen.
To a delegation of Englishmen received by his Majesty this afternoon
the emperor assured them that he did to his best to preserve peace and promote the friendly relationship existing between our two countries. The delegation of Englishmen seemed almost enraptured. The delegation represented organizations of every kind
and all brought with them illustri-
ated addresses and handsome gifts.
The most imposing testimonial was
the endowment of $250,000 raised by the German municipality for charitable and establishment and the national subscription of $500,000 devoted to German Christian missions in which Catholics and Protestants participated, the Catholics raising $225,000
and the Protestants $225,000.

To Confer Degrees.
It was expected that amnesties affecting minor and military offenders would be proclaimed during the day and a shower of decorations
was conferred, the list filling many pages of the Reichsbote. Nobody doubted that the highest officials gardener, the biggest orders, and commerce were well recognized. The weather carried off the Hohenzollern prediction of being rainy and warm. Thousands of spectators stood throughout the day
around the capitol and along the principal thoroughfares.

stranger, was sent to jail for five
days this morning after pleading guilty
to a charge of intoxication. Dineen

Los Angeles, June 16.—Charles Er-
centaur, 82 years old, indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of having offered a bribe to a United States senator to obtain the office of postmaster at Santa Barbara, faced arraignment today with conspiracy.
He placed reliance in the promise of his wife, Lucinda, and his daughter, Bessie, to "bring the whole of Santa Barbara to tell the judge" that he meant no wrong when he wrote to Senator Works promising $1,000 for the postmastership. In an ingeniously worded confession he admits having offered Senator Works
his cash savings, disavowing any intention to commit a crime.COMMISSION CANELS

Madison, Wis., June 16.—Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the president of the United States, arrived in Madison Saturday night to spend a week as the guest of Mrs. Joseph E.
Davies, wife of the commissioner of corrections. Miss Wilson declined to be interviewed. It was announced that she had left Washington for a quiet trip and had refused to talk for publication at any time since her start.Mr. and Mrs. Davies also came from Washington, their primary purpose being attendance upon the reunion of the class of 1888 of the University of Wisconsin tomorrow.Several society functions will probably be arranged for Miss Wilson.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Manila, P. I., June 16.—Complete routing of the rebellious Moros on Mount Bagbag was accomplished by the American forces during the night
with a loss of six men killed and
seven wounded.Reports of the engagement reaching here by wireless from the island
of Jolo are meagre. All of the Americans killed were members of the several companies of scouts. In the first advance upon the mountain last week
when the Moros were nearly dis-
lodged from their positions six Americans were also then killed. The number of dead among the Moros is not

RALLY CONFERENCEConciliation Committee of Progressive Republicans Will Oppose Reforms
Without Party Convention.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 16.—Members of the conciliation committee of the progressive republicans who recently
made demands upon the republican national committee for a national convention this year have decided as the result of meetings here Saturday and yesterday to oppose any action by the national committee to effect proposed
reforms without a party convention.
Senators Cummins, former Governor
Hendley of Missouri, Senators Jones
and Crawford and Representatives
Anderson of Minnesota, Grammon of Michigan, and Rogers of Massachusetts participated in the conference
which will be renewed later this week.GROCERS' TRUST SUED
FOR ALLEGED CONTEMPT[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Birmingham, Ala., June 16.—The criminal contempt proceedings
brought by the government against the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association and fifty-nine individuals for alleged violation of the anti-trust decreed against the "Grocers' Trust"
came up for hearing in the federal court here today. The government
charged that the defendants employed threats and persuasion to prevent manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers from reducing prices. It is also charged they have sought to coerce businessmen to join the trust, and
through the wholesaler, and have conspired to prevent transactions
from producer to retailer or consumer.
Particular interest attaches to the contempt proceedings, as the action may be a forerunner of prosecution of other trusts, including Tobacco and
Standard oil.MINNESOTA LABOR UNIONS
IN ANNUAL CONVENTION[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Cloud, Minn., June 16.—Representatives of the various trades unions
throughout Minnesota, and in large numbers, were assembled in this city
today when the thirty-first annual convention of the State Federation of Labor was called to order by President E. G. Hall. The convention is expected to continue through the week. The annual reports presented at the initial session showed gratifying progress made by the federation
during the past year, especially in the direction of obtaining legislation favoring the interests of labor.TAFT LAYS CORNERSTONE

in the cornerstone exercises.COMMENCEMENT WEEK

Oshkosh, June 16.—William Mil-
breig of Amherst, Wis., is recovering
from lockjaw at St. Mary's hospital here.
It required 54 units of anti-
toxin to overcome the disease, costing $75. Ordinarily $2 worth would be sufficient. The physicians used all the supplies available in the city. His fingers were firmly set when he arrived
here. He was poisoned by stepping on a rusty nail.WILSON TO READ HIS CURRENCY MESSAGE
TO CONGRESS SOONThis Announcement is Made in Washington This Afternoon—Explained to Newspaper Men
At Conference.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 16.—President
Wilson will probably read his currency message personally to both branches of congress assembled in the hall of the house as he did his tariff
message today. It is about 1200 words long and urges immediate revision of the banking and currency laws.
The president expects the currency
bill to be launched in both houses of congress this week some time. It represents the administration views and according to Mr. Wilson will be "no man's bill" but the result of common
counsel among currency advocates
whose suggestions were condensed
and formulated by Secretary McAdoo
of the treasury department. Chairman Owen and Glass of the senate and house banking and currency committees respectively with the advice and assistance of the president.At the regular semi-weekly conference with the Washington correspondents today the president was asked
for an explanation of some of the principles of currency reform, but said that in as much as the bill and his own message would be made public within a week he would refrain from comment at this time. The president was undecided as to whether the message would be presented to congress in advance of the currency
bill or whether he would be made public about the same time. The immediate pressure prevailed, however, that the bill would be introduced in both houses by Wednesday or Thursday of this week and that the president will pronounce his views to congress about the 20th.The president did declare, however, today
that there were no essential variations
among the leading democrats with whom he had consulted concerning currency reform. From the intimacy of the capitol the president declared that there was no disagreement among the leading democrats concerning the currency bill as it is launched as the final word of this administration on the subject.Harmony of purpose, but perhaps not of opinion, is the way
the White House sizes up the currency situation. With the feeling that the framers of the bill have been walking on sound ground the president and democratic leaders hope to reconcile
differences and there will be party
agreement eventually. The president's position to regard the currency
bill is launched as the final word of
this administration on the subject.CLAIM HEAT CAUSE

Ties up Traffic.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Appleton, June 16.—After an investigation on the part of the officials of the C. & N. W. road who were on the scene at 2 o'clock this morning, heat
was given as the cause of the freight
wreck which tied up traffic on the Fox
River valley for 16 hours.
The thermometer yesterday registered 95 in the shade. The intense heat caused the rails to spread pulling
the spikes, and were carried
into the ditch, but none were injured.
The first train to come through here
since yesterday afternoon pulled in
this morning at ten o'clock.CLASS DAY CELEBRATED

Providence, R. I., June 16.—Today
was class day at Brown University
and the members of the senior class
entertained their friends in splendid style. In the course of the day there were a number of interesting exercises and the various clubs of the university. The formal exercises were held this afternoon on the Middle Campus. The principal contributors to the program were Ira L. Letts of Moravia, N. Y., who delivered the opening address; John Kent Starkweather of Denver, who delivered the oration; and Clarence Horace Philbrick of Providence, who contributed the class
poem.

These DaysIs the man or woman who knows something about the art
of warm weather dressing.
So many things are planned
for our comfort that it is our
own fault if we don't know
about them.
On the one hand we see people fretting and fidgeting in great physical discomfort; while on the other we note with envy of cheerful folk who are cool, comfortable, and contented.
The reason is that some persons are smarter than others in selecting their apparel for summer wear. A careful reading of the advertisements appearing
daily in The Gazette will teach
any one willing to learn all the
up-to-date tricks in summer
dressing that brains have devised for the benefit and comfort
of mankind.

will follow it.ENGLISH POLO TEAM WANTS RETURN MEETDuke of Westminster Reported to Have Started Campaign for Another Match Next
Year.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, June 16.—The Duke of Westminster, who backed the English
polo team on its trip to this country
in the unsuccessful attempt to lift the Westchester polo cup, has just started his campaign to get the trophy
back to England. This is about as far as any of the English players
would commit themselves today as to the possibility of another challenge
for the cup next year, but there seems to be the general opinion that in view
of the close score by which the cup
was defended last week the duke will not be content until he has sent his Englishmen to try again. When the team sails for England on Thursday it will take back only twenty-seven of the forty-two ponies which were brought over for the tournament. A few of the mounts have already been sold and there are a number of the older ones still to be disposed of. This weeding out process is taken as an indication that the duke proposes to improve his stable in preparation for another challenge. The time limit for a challenge for a series next year is December 31st. A special cable dispatch published today hinted the possibility of a challenge from Germany.
Polo is coming into great popularity
here under the name of polo de la
crown prince, and it is said that there is a general desire to send the representative team to America, but probably this will not be realized for a few years at least.DAMAGED LAKE STEAMER

products of the mines are important items in the tariff bill. Senator

MISSOURI RATE CASESUPREME COURT UPHOLDS MIS-

RAILROADS DEFEATED

In Action Which Effects

Washington, June 16.—In the Missouri rate cases today the supreme court held the rates concatory on the St. Louis and Hannibal, Kansas City,
Clinton and Springfield and Chicago,
and Great Western Railroads.
The decision held the rates valid as to the St. Louis, Southwestern, the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern, the Wabash, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Chicago and Alton.
The decision holding the rate con-
catory as to the Chicago and Great Western was made to apply by virtue of stipulation between state and railroads to the Quincy, Omaha and Kansas City railroad and the St. Joseph and Grand Island railway. The decision was based upon the two cent
passenger law and the maximum
freight law.Against Railroads.
Justice Hughes who announced the decision held that the points sought
to be made by the railroads to the effect that the Missouri rates were an interference with interstate commerce
must be decided against them for the same reason given by the court in the Minnesota rate cases.The court also sustained the rates
of the Missouri law as to the Chicago
Burlington and Quincy, the Atchison
Topeka and Santa Fe, the Kansas City
Southern, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, including the St. Louis, Kansas City and Colorado and the St.
Louis and San Francisco. In each of these cases the decrees of the lower court in favor of the railroads were
reversed.Because of a provision in the law
arbitrarily fixing $500 damages for each violation of the supreme court
today annulled as unconstitutional the Kansas statute of 1905 which fixed
the maximum rate for the transportation of oil by rail. The objectionable clause was held to prevent railroads
from testing whether the rates were concatory.The West Virginia two cent passenger law was today upheld by the supreme court, which affirmed the supreme court of appeals of West Virginia.The Arkansas minimum freight rate
law and the two cent passenger fare
law were today upheld as valid by the supreme court.The supreme court today upheld as valid the rates imposed by the Oregon
railway commission, ruling that the commission was not in violation of the federal court of that state.
At 2:15 p. m. the supreme court
adjourned until next October when it will announce a decision in the intermountain rate cases, or passing
upon an application for review of the Gompers-Mitchell-Morrison contempt of court case.The supreme court today decided that the federal government was not financially responsible for the flooding of more than one hundred plantations on the Mississippi river as a result of levee destruction. Efforts were made to hold the government responsible for the value of the lands flooded, in all about seven million dollars.MRS. PANKHURST FREED

TRINITY PARISH HAS ANNIVERSARY SERVICE

HANDSOME MEMORIAL WINDOW DECIDED ON SUNDAY MORNING.

STRONG SERMON GIVEN

Bishop Webb Takes His Text from Psalms—Exercises Held During the Entire Week.

Sixty-five years ago Trinity Episcopal parish was consecrated and starting with the early communion Sunday morning at seven P. M. Reverend William Walter Webb, D. D., bishop of the Milwaukee diocese, the entire week will be devoted to the anniversary services. At thirty, there was solemn procession and benediction of the new memorial window in the church, followed by a sermon by Bishop Webb and holy communion.

It was a most impressive ceremony. Bishop Webb, with all the regalia of his bishop's office, his bishop's robe, mitre and staff of office, dedicated the handsome window representing the child Jesus in the arms of his mother and after the beautiful communion prayers had been said, preached a wonderful sermon, taking his text from the 12th verse of the One Hundred and Sixteenth Psalm: "What Shall I Benefit Into the Land for All His Benefits Toward Me?"

Bishop Webb told of the history of the verse taken as a text. Written at the time of the restoration of the temple by the ancient Jews, it was the means of rejoicing of the Jews over the re-establishment of their religion. He explained how this same verse has been said or sung by more priests, both of the Jewish and Christian faith, than almost any other and what it really means. Just at this time, when Trinity parish is celebrating its sixty-fifth anniversary, it is most appropriate to express thanksgiving to the many benefits that have accrued to the church.

Here Bishop Webb took occasion to pay a little tribute to the long service of Warden J. C. Fox as warden and vestryman and also to others of the vestry who have devoted their life to the church. He spoke of the endowment fund, made possible by bequests and spoke of the fact that out of the fourteen rectors of the church had during its long existence, seven of them had been graduates of Nashota House, the diocese's training school. Two of the Trinity pastors, Reverend Thomas Russell, the first rector and Reverend Fayette Durbin, rector from 1865 until 1871, have left a memory in the entire diocese that is cherished.

Returning to his text Bishop Webb said that thankfulness was part of virtue. He thanked the Gods that he was an Athenian as did Socrates another Grecian philosopher. How unthankful mankind really is, he illustrated by the healing of the lepers by Christ and how they were healed and went their way rejoicing while he returned to give thanks. We pray to God for preservation from many evils, but when those evils are passed, we forget to give thanks to the Divine presence for aiding us and accepting our prayers.

That during the last half of the nineteenth century the pendulum of human thought wavered from theism and slowly returning, coming back from the isms and schisms of Christian belief to true worship. Today is a period of idealism, men think much of God and worship him. Magazines, theatres and newspapers are filled with religious thoughts and ideas and we have much to be thankful for in this direction. Mankind is dependent upon God for his very existence. One way to show our gratitude of His many blessings is by prayer and devotion. By sacrifice, however small, but self-denial in the devotion to the cause of God, we measure show our thankfulness to the great Ruler above. Bishop Webb urged upon his hearers, particularly the men of the congregation, to attend communion services often and to do so as the one means of showing their thankfulness to God for his many mercies and benefits.

This morning at seven holy communion and religious services for the deceased bishops of the diocese were held and this evening at six thirty, the home coming banquet and reception served at the Y. M. C. A. The program for the remainder of the week is as follows:

Tuesday.
Sectional conference of women's auxiliary.

OBITUARY.

Barney O'Brien.
Barney O'Brien, aged seventy-one years, and a resident of Janesville since 1876, passed away at five-thirty o'clock this morning at his home on Eastern avenue after a lingering illness.
Mr. O'Brien was born at Hamilton, Canada, in 1842. He was a veteran of the civil war seeing service with the 49th Wisconsin volunteers. He was a member of the W. H. Sargent G. A. R.
He is survived by two sons and one daughter, Miss Florence and Fred O'Brien of this city, and William O'Brien of Port Atkinson; he also leaves two sisters, Mrs. John Green of Edgerton and Mrs. Al Keen of Dubuque, Iowa, and one brother, Dan O'Brien of Port Atkinson.
Funeral services will be held at nine o'clock Wednesday morning from St. Patrick's church.

Mrs. Bernard H. Lucht.
Mrs. Bernard Lucht passed peacefully away at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at her home, 402 Center avenue. She had been in failing health for many years and was aged fifty-four years, two months and fifteen days at the time of her death. Mrs. Lucht was born in Germany, April 1, 1859, and emigrated to the United States about thirty years ago, soon after her marriage to Bernard H. Lucht. Mr. and Mrs. Lucht resided in Milwaukee for twenty-two years, moving to Janesville eight or nine years ago. Surviving Mrs. Lucht are her husband, two sons, Paul and Arthur, a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Woolin, and one grandchild, Edward Howard Woolin residing in Janesville. She also leaves to mourn her loss four brothers, Edward, Herman, Frank and Gustave Wolter, and one sister, Gustine Wolter, all of Milwaukee. Funeral services will be held at the home at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and at St. John's German Lutheran church at 9:30 p. m. Interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

She also leaves to mourn her loss four brothers, Edward, Herman, Frank and Gustave Wolter, and one sister, Gustine Wolter, all of Milwaukee. Funeral services will be held at the home at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and at St. John's German Lutheran church at 9:30 p. m. Interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

George Hallett, the three days old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hallett, died at the home, 302 South River street, at about ten o'clock yesterday morning. The tiny remains were laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery this afternoon.

CORNER STONE LAID SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Good Sized Crowd Present at Ceremony Attending Construction of St. John's Lutheran Church.
St. John's German Lutheran congregation yesterday afternoon laid the corner stone of its new church building at the corner of North Bluff street and Peace Court in the presence of a good sized crowd, including most of its members and other interested persons. The program planned for the occasion was carried out in full by the Rev. P. Pichler, pastor, assisted the pastor, the Rev. S. W. Fuchs, and delivering the sermon. There were deposited in a lead-box set into the corner stone a copy of the New Testament as translated by Luther, Luther's catechism and the Lutheran church book, list of the charter members and present members of the congregation, members of the Ladies Aid Society, building committee, copies of "The Gazette," "The Recorder," "The Journal" and church papers. It is expected that the new church will be completed by October 1.

SPECIAL PERMITS A THING OF PAST

Couples Contemplating Matrimony Must Wait the Required Five Days According to New Law.

Several couples seeking special permits allowing them to wed at the time without waiting the required five days have recently been disappointed at the county court.

The present legislature has placed certain restrictions in regard to the issuing of special marriage permits according to the copy of a law which has been received by the county clerk. This law provides that the county judge shall issue special permits in his discretion upon the presentation of satisfactory evidence that neither of the parties is seriously ill, or upon special or peculiar conditions involving the female. The law further specified that no special permit shall be issued to persons who have not resided in the state for one year. This is calculated to prevent elopements and hasty marriages.

It is evident from the provisions of the statute that special permits will henceforth be issued on very rare occasions. The law is viewed with favor by marriage license officials and was endorsed by the Wisconsin association of county clerks.

One of the special permits issued at the county court this morning was to delay the contemplated wedding. Marriage licenses have been issued at the clerk's office as follows: Marjorie Messer of Beloit and Alvin Lewis Sawyer of Forest Park; Marjorie Warren Gregory of Beloit and Benjamin Warren Brown of Fargo, N. Dak.; Frank Griffin and Amelia Glassan, both of Janesville; William C. Hinguhun, Jr. and Sarah L. Smith, both of Beloit; Miss Smith, daughter of the late Oliver P. Smith, former county treasurer.

FOND DU LAC LINE GETS NEW TRAIN

Railroad Commission's Order for New Train Becomes Effective Tonight.

In response to the petitions of the residents of the cities along the Northwestern line to Fond du Lac and the order of the Wisconsin railroad commission, the Northwestern officials have arranged a new train to Fond du Lac, and have changed the time on one of the trains on the schedule at present.
The old Watertown train number 541 which left this city at 7:45, has been taken off and connections with that train are made with the new through train to Fond du Lac. The new train will be numbered 29 and will leave Janesville at 6:50 p. m. to

FROST DOES DAMAGE TO THE CORN CROP

Means a Setback of a Week to Most Fields Although Hot Weather and Cultivation Will Do Wonders.

(By Noyes Raessler.)

Something which is very unusual in this latitude was the three nights of frost the early part of last week. Although the frost was so light that potatoes and corn were not touched, the early planted corn received a setback which will be apt to place it in a line with corn that is now just coming through the ground. However, this is by no means an indication that the corn crop of Rock county will be a failure.

I have seen corn frozen off level with the ground and turned black in June and still it developed into a fair crop. The very worst that can result from the late frosts this year is a week or ten days' setback.

By cultivating continually, the moisture that is in the ground together with the hot weather we are now enjoying, the corn will grow so fast that in two weeks it will be knee high in many fields.

I am glad to note that the boys in our corn contest are working so diligently even under somewhat discouraging conditions at the start. It is a very ill wind that does nobody any good. The corn growers north of us are laboring under still greater difficulties than we. Their corn suffered still more injury than ours, and they can ill afford to stand any shrinkage in the growing season.

The indications are that seed corn will be in much greater demand next spring than it was this year, owing to this late freeze.

TO USE FOUR MORE CARS OF LIGHT OIL

City Will Apply it to Unpaved Streets and Portions of Macadam—Heavy Oil More Expensive.

Four cars of light asphaltic oil have been ordered by the city for application to the unpaved streets and portions of the macadam pavement. These do not constitute an additional order but are merely a specification of quality under the contract between the city and the Cadillac Refining Company. The next car to arrive will be of the lighter variety, and so will the succeeding three. More heavy oil may be used later. Two have been received thus far.

It is characteristic to apply the heavy asphaltic oil to the gravel, or dirt streets, for the reason that the reason that the surface is not sufficiently smooth and firm, and it is also necessary to apply a thin coat of fine screenings or sand to the oil before the street can be opened to traffic. This is to be done on Washington street and other paved streets where the heavy oil has been used. Because of the greater initial cost and the expense of applying sand and screenings the use of it cost the city considerably more than the lighter material. It is virtually a permanent improvement of the street as it lasts under normal traffic for three years or more, protecting the pavement from wash and wear.

Application for a site for an oil storage tank has been filed with the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway. This site is located on North Bluff street between two buildings belonging to W. J. Baker and Company and would permit the tapping of the oil by gravity from the cars into the storage tank and from the latter into the distributors. A 12,000 gallon storage tank, capable of holding two tank cars, has been bought, but is being held subject to orders for shipment. It will be placed on a concrete foundation ready for it when it arrives.

TINKERING WITH THE TARIFF.

That the democratic administration has assumed a large and troublesome contract, in attempting to revise the tariff, becomes more and more apparent as time progresses. The house of representatives is top-heavy with new members—men who have never given the tariff either thought or consideration.

The Underwood bill, endorsed by the president, is the product of a democratic caucus. The four hundred new members, in the house, many of them democrats, have no knowledge of its contents, but are asked to support it and the democratic members will without "dotting an i" or "crossing a t," as one of them said the other day, in discussing it.

Hon. James R. Frear, representative from Wisconsin, claims that the bill discriminates against the Badger state. The following extracts from a speech he made in the House, recently, are worth heeding. He said:

"In registering a brief protest against this measure I do so representing a constituency that is discriminated against by the bill. No privileged interests of Wisconsin are demanding a lease of life, although many substantial industries in our state are apprehensive of results. Doubtless weak business interests, here and there, in our state and throughout the country will go under, but responsibility for preparing a bill has been placed upon democratic shoulders, and carping criticism from political opponents is ill-timed. No point out defects showing the spirit of discrimination is sufficient for my purpose."

Wisconsin is an agricultural state, so is Alabama, the home of the distinguished gentleman whose name the bill bears, and each state boasts of about the same population. Whatever may be the consequences, Wisconsin does not receive nor ask favors for itself, under the bill, that are not granted to the country at large. With its $90,000,000 annual production of two-thirds of the total amount of manufactured products of every character in Alabama for 1909, Wisconsin will maintain its lead in this industry, because soil, climate and water are advantages superior to tariff walls, however high. Its barley and other grains will also continue to stand first in character and production per acre, whether the Underwood bill succeeds or fails. Wisconsin sheep and mutton will capture sweepstakes at every annual international contest, for many years past, whether or not wool goes on the free list or dressed mutton comes in free from Canada.

In agricultural products our state will share in the general prosperity or depression following the passage of this bill, but it will continue to maintain its position in products raised per acre, because fertility of soil and intelligent farming are not dependent upon tariff schedules. If the Underwood bill that discriminates against the farmers of the country becomes a law we must accept a situation which is the logical result of its verdict, rendered by the country last November.

"Manufacturers must also conform to that judgment. The 182,583 wage earners in the factories of Wisconsin, who produced $599,306,000 in manufactured products in 1909—the latest available census report—will be able to withstand the shock of a sudden reduction in schedules as well as will the 81,972 employees living in Alabama, whose total manufactures, aggregating $145,562,000, amount to less than 25 per cent of Wisconsin's products, according to the same governmental authority. We have more employees and more interests at stake, but Alabama and Wisconsin have people and interests in common to protect.

"Inquiring as to specific items, why does the Underwood bill give to the farmers of the North the empty pretense of protection while tobacco of the South are protected by rates ranging from 35 cents to $2.50 a pound? Why does the crop of 418,007 bushels of dried peas harvested by the Alabama farmer receive a protective duty of 9.55 per cent ad valorem while $21,667,000 of flour manufactured in Wisconsin is expected to pay 10 cents more per bushel for wheat to grind than do our Canadian competitors who, under the bill, will enter our markets free of duty? What legitimate grounds of reasoning justifies throwing our doors open to wool-growers of Australia and the world at large, against whom the Wisconsin farmer must hereafter compete, while 79,349 Angora goats in Mr. Underwood's state are protected with tariff duties for the first time in the history of the country. On what theory of revenue only reasoning, aside from political power, is Alabama enabled to save its own goat while it gets ours?"

"What broad statesmanship has been employed in the construction of this bill which forces 31,568,165 bushels of Wisconsin potatoes on the free list to yearly compete in the home market with tubers from Canada and abroad while in the same schedule 1,573,796 bushels of Alabama peanuts, raised during the same year, are to be protected by a rate of from 10.12 per cent ad valorem to 48.75 per cent in their tariff-for-revenue duties?"

Without disrespectful allusion to the Democratic tariff bill or the inspiration that possessed its unknown authors, it can truthfully be said that the bill embodies a peanut protection policy, with free-trade frills, while masquerading under the illusive title of "a tariff for revenue only."

These comparisons may seem a little odious, but they are not pictures of imagination, and they indicate very clearly that the South demands protection, as well as the North.

TO SEE THEM GROW.

The New York Wall Street Journal is not taking kindly to the proposed investigations of the federal government into the various parts of the tobacco trust. Under the caption "To see them grow" it deals with the question at hand in the following caustic manner:

"To use a simile which has not appeared in this place for some years, our legislators and public officials, even when they are actuated by the purest motives, behave very much as we all did when we were children. They cannot be content to plant something and wait. They disinter their radishes to see if they are growing. This is what Attorney-General McReynolds wants to do in the Tobacco suit."

"Naturally the wearied business man, toiling to make a living for himself and his family and his workpeople, wishes he could have something like dynamite in the never-ending assault upon efficient business conditions. The court decided the case of the American Tobacco Co. Because its ruling did not produce actual bankruptcy to the stockholders, or for some other reason equally absurd, Mr. McReynolds proposed the imposition of an excise tax such as this country has never seen since the desperate taxing expedients of the Civil War."

"His complaint, and the complaint of those like him, who see nearly two inches beyond their noses but not quite, is that the stocks of this disintegrated company are still held by the same people, and for that reason the attempt to force competition among people who prefer to be friends has failed. There is not much hope in the individual case of Mr. McReynolds, but to the man who deprecates handicrafting the business of the country, it ought to be plain that the road for wasteful competition, blocked by the alleged trusts, is not closed."

"In the course of time, if only our politicians and government officials will leave their radishes in the ground to grow, these holdings of stock will disintegrate. Even if there were no stock market—and our busy reformers seem anxious to transfer that valuable part of the business of the United States to London—there would still be the breaking up of the holdings in the various tobacco companies consequent upon the death of stockholders, in the course of nature."

"Whether it is desirable to restore cutthroat competition is another matter, and presumably a zealous Attorney General has given it serious thought. His public-spirited predecessor's enlightened efforts to dismember the Standard Oil company are reflected in the price of gasoline. Mr. McReynolds can make himself immortal at the consumer's expense in pretty much the same way. He can, with the assistance of congress, inflict upon us a kind of tobacco which only the French government dares sell. His ideal should be a 'regie,' to compel the citizen to smoke bad tobacco or do without it."

"How would 'Caporal' McReynolds suit the popular fancy, as a well-earned title?"

After having exonerated the Washington police from responsibility for the attacks on the suffrage parade, the senate should not find it difficult to do the same thing for itself and the lobbyists.

Eight nations have indicated that they favor Mr. Bryan's peace plan. But the democratic party can't promise until after the convention of 1916.

So long as the suffragists don't break up the afternoon teas in its offices and business houses, London will try to worry along somehow.

Baltimore at least has the satisfaction of knowing it is within reaching distance of that fine bed of mint at the White House.

I tell you what, your friends come and and slap you on the back. And friends you never knew before hand you a hearty smack. The things they say all make you feel just like you are a king. They listen and they laugh right out when you say anything. "There's nothing in the world too good for you," that's what they say. They tell you that the world will talk about you some fine day. They go and the fatted calf whenever you heave in sight. They spread the pleasant salve on you and surely spread it right. They're proud to know you, yes they are and flatter as they should. Your friends besiege you day and night. When you are Makin' God.

You never see a single soul you know from morn till night. You gaze around quite anxiously, but no one heaves in sight. You wonder where those friends have gone you used to know so well. You somehow miss the hearty laugh when your best yarns you tell. Nobody slaps you on the back or treats you like a king. You cannot find an audience. You feel the dreaded sting. Of failure in the atmosphere and cannot tell just why. The flatterers of yesterday are wont to pass you by. You miss the glad acclaim they gave, the ever welcoming shout. For very few will stick by you when you are Down and Out.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

ADVANCEMENT.

Nothing is exactly like anything that has been before. Life progresses by unfoldment, development, evolution. Thus all things are forever new. They include the old, yet are more than the old. There is infinite variety. Each moment has its own revelation. Each presents in turn something new and strange, some novel beauty, some phase of truth never seen before. All of this is in the germ of the past, ready to unfold into life and manifestation under the broodings of progress.

There is no loss. Form and function change, but being goes on. The past is ever included in the present. All of its results are here. All of the record is kept in the book of life. Not a blade of grass passes unmarked. Every hair of the head is numbered. There is an eternal conservation of all the things that are. Appearances come and go like the clouds of the sky, but the sun shines on forever. Nothing that is can ever cease to be. Its shells or manifestations may change, but the essence is immortal. No experience can ever really be forgotten. The universe knows no such thing as loss.

Life is continuous. It is a unity. In that unity is never exhausted variety. Day by day presents some new phase of the one life. All things that are hold relation to all things that ever have been, to all things that ever will be. The loom of life goes on weaving, and the cloth of gold it produces is continuous and seamless. In it are an infinite number of threads. No one thread is like another all in all. Each is distinct from the others, and yet all go to make up the one texture. Each thread may be compared to an individual life. On they go, now over, now under, this moment visible from the upper side, the next moment from that beneath. But no thread ever ceases. New colors are constantly appearing, new combinations are ever made, but it is ever the same cloth, made up from the same individual lives. So the warp and woof of time go on to eternity.

We can never be bound to the old. The relative statement of yesterday does not answer for today. We see the truth in a new way and must tell of it in a new language. The truth has not changed, but we have changed in our larger consciousness of the truth.

He who ties himself to the old will stand still in the race of life. If he would ever go forward to his divine destiny he must be free. He cannot weigh himself down with a ball and chain forged in some past age.

The past is our teacher, not our tyrant. The stairway of God leads upward and onward. He who would mount must keep his face to the future.

CITY SAVED EXPENSE

Action Taken By Council At Meeting.

This Afternoon—Little Other Business Taken Up.

Postponement of the election to determine whether the city of Janesville should issue $35,000 in bonds to raise funds for the construction of a new bridge on Milwaukee street, from July 2, the first date announced, to July 8, the date set for the primary on candidates for mayor, was made by the council at a resolution adopted by the City Council at an adjourned meeting held this afternoon. This action was taken for the reason that a week's adjournment would not materially delay the construction of the bridge and it would result in saving the city the expense of one election, amounting to about $400. About the only other business that came before the Council was a petition to oil High street from Pleasant street to School street, and the City Clerk was instructed to draw an order in the sum of $75 from the Memorial Day fund in favor of Mayor Fathers, by him to be turned over to the Treasurer of the local camp of the G. A. R.

Barn at Fairfield

in Saturday storm

Large Building on Jerome Water-

man Farm Burns to Ground.

Small Blaze at Sheldon

Home in This City.

Fire started by a lightning flash during the storm of Saturday night destroyed the large barn on the Jerome Waterman farm a half mile south of Fairfield. One horse, a calf, a quantity of hay and grain and the silo which adjoined the barn, were also burned.

The building took fire between nine and ten o'clock and was enveloped in flames before the tenant, Theodore Snyder, or any of his family, were aware of the havoc started by a severe bolt of lightning. It was impossible to save any of the contents and attention was centered in preventing the spread of the fire to nearby outbuildings. Torrents of water which followed in checking the flames. The loss which is large, owing to the fact that the barn was a large one and nearly new, is partially covered by insurance.

Other damage in this section of the country was a fire which destroyed a small barn at Sheldon.

Lightning in the home of Fred Sheldon on Milwaukee avenue. The storm which was accompanied by the most violent display of the spring looked dangerous and rumors of a cyclone were heard on the streets before it broke. The report that Madison had suffered heavy loss was false as the storm there was nothing more than a heavy rain.

Lightning struck the home of Mr. Sheldon at about 9:45 o'clock, setting a window sash in the second story on fire. The fire department was summoned by the alarm given by a new motor truck and wagons No. 1 and No. 4 responding. A pony carriage was sufficient to extinguish the blaze and the damage was nominal.

Severe damage was suffered by the Janesville Electric Company which reports that the storm was one of the worst that they have experienced in years. The automatic circuit breaker operated almost instantaneously and a number of step-down transformers and fuses were burned out. The company's men worked all day yesterday to repair the damage and get the city in condition for operation last evening. Street lights at the intersections of North Franklin and Bluff streets and South Franklin and Dodge streets were out all night.

Telephone companies suffered but slightly, a few burned out fuses and some wires broken by limbs of trees falling against them being the extent of their damage. The alarm system was slightly damaged, the coils in a part of the mechanism at Spring Brook station burning out.

THREE APPOINTED AS PAID FIREMEN

Fred Burdick, Henry Kressin and Edward Hanson on Probation.

Hanson to Drive Truck.

Three men have been appointed firemen by Chief of Fire Department H. C. Klein, and will be considered permanent members of the department after the usual period of probation. They are Fred Burdick, Henry Kressin and Edward Hanson.

Burdick, Kressin and Hanson, who are all natives of this city, were appointed to the position of paid firemen by Chief Klein, who has been in the city for some time.

Burdick will be a truck driver, Kressin will be a hoseman with Company No. 2, and Edward Hanson is taking lessons in the operation of the motor fire truck. Before accepting his present position he ran an auto truck for the Field Lumber Company. He is leaving rapidly and promises to make an efficient chauffeur. This morning he drove the truck up North Main street, which was unimpaired and very steep. Chief Klein will appoint a fourth man for some time. He is in need of two more call men. The truck will probably be moved to its permanent location on the east side of the river this week. The fire engine was given a tryout and the new firemen given instructions in its use this afternoon.

SENIOR PARTY WILL BE HELD ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Invitations were sent out today by the senior class committee for the annual senior dance to be held on Friday night of this week in Assembly hall. A large number of high school students and alumni are planning to attend. The decorations are now well under way for the affair, and the committee are slightly in the expense of ever in having the hall in the best of shape for the dance. The committee is composed of Ralph Soullman, Benjamin Kuhlo, Joseph Ryan and Harold Mohr. Before the dance there will be a concert by the orchestra from nine until nine-thirty and from ten until one-thirty the floor will be given over to dancing.

SUNDAY NIGHT FIRE

SET BY INCENDIARY

Oil Soaked Rags Found by Chief Klein Near Fence of Thomas Rossebo Saloon.

That in incendiary, possibly the same gang that started previous fires is still at large in the city was made plain last night when Chief Klein on responding with his men to a fire alarm found a pile of kerosene drenched rags against a board fence in Thomas Rossebo and Janesville Tea Company's store, respectively at 34 and 16 South River street.

The fence divides the lots to the rear of the two buildings which are owned by William Lenz and the fire was started near the end that adjoins the buildings. There are several door and window openings near the point and the flames might easily have entered the buildings from the fence if not quickly suppressed. A tank of chemicals was found sufficient to extinguish the fire. The alarm, from box sixteen was pulled by the Chief. Mr. Lenz notifying the department in person of the fire to the rear of his building. Chief Klein will report to State Fire Marshal of the circumstances.

RACES ON FOURTH AT ASSOCIATION TRACK

ARE ARRANGED FOR

Three Horse Races, Two Auto Races and Two Motorcycle Thrillers

On the Card.

Even if Janesville does not have a Fourth of July celebration all of its own, those who want plenty of thrills and good honest enjoyment, can go to the Park Association track in the afternoon where will be staged a race program that should please all. There will be three horse races, between local horses in training, there will be two auto races, one twenty-five mile, one ten mile, and two motorcycle races, one ten miles and for five miles and they promise to be stem winders. Secretary Putnam is completing arrangements for the various events and they promise to be good ones. Ladies are to be admitted free and a good crowd is expected. Recently the Twenty-Five Thousand Club contemplated a similar set of events but on finding that the Park Association had similar plans dropped their plans and will unite with the latter in making the day a success.

Something of a Lottery.

"What I want," said the young man, "is to get married and have a peaceful, quiet home." "Well, sometimes it works that way and sometimes it's like joining a debating society."

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ISN'T IT YOUR MISTAKE?

THERE is nothing in the world commoner than for ordinary mortals to make mistakes.

And there is nothing in the world harder for ordinary mortals than to believe themselves capable of making mistakes.

One of the fundamental instincts of the human race is to hunt for someone to blame when anything goes wrong—and to hunt with field glasses. The idea that the trouble may be nearer home usually has difficulty in finding its way into the mind.

A friend of mine was bewailing the carelessness or selfishness of a friend of hers who had not answered an important letter. "I think it's either very unkind or inexcusably careless of her," she scolded. "I told her how much it meant to me to hear within two or three days. She's so heedless, I shouldn't wonder if she had written and forgotten to mail her letter or else she has gotten the address wrong." She is always making mistakes like that.

After much stewing and fretting my friend finally resorted to another letter and was astonished to find that her first letter had never arrived. It was eventually returned to her from the dead letter office and she discovered to her chagrin and embarrassment that she herself had made a mistake in the address.

Can you imagine how she felt?

I am sure you must be able to, for there are few of us who have not had similar experiences when the other fellow's mistake about which we were so indignant turned out to be our own mistake after all.

I can appreciate her feelings most thoroughly for just last night I became quite indignant with a telephone operator for failing to get the number I called for. "I know they will answer if you call them," I insisted, "for they are expecting me to call." The matter was finally referred to the girl higher up and when the misunderstanding was finally given the wrong number. As I begged the girl's pardon I wished I had not been so emphatic before.

Another acquaintance of mine even went so far as to suspend her friendship with an old friend because the latter had failed to call her up on the telephone one morning as she had asked her to do. As it happened the request had been made by letter and when the misunderstanding was finally thrashed out the letter was produced and the quick tempered one saw it written in her own handwriting that she had said she would call up instead of requesting her friend to do so.

As I said before, the desire to blame others for anything that goes wrong in one's social or business affairs or for any misunderstanding with one's friends is as universal as it is deep rooted. But before you yield to this desire it is always a good plan to make very sure that it is not your own mistake after all.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

AND ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I like your question department and think it very instructive to the young except for one thing. You teach that engaged people should kiss and embrace, and I never can see the wisdom of it.

For is a man never satisfied with a kiss? We teach young men never to take the first step, for when you do you are in danger of being a drunkard.

Now before I was married to my husband, while we kissed and embraced some he has told me on more than one occasion to let him alone.

You may think him very unnatural, but I have been in poor health all of my ten years of married life and he has been as good and kind and considerate as a man could be.

Now young men everywhere get engaged to sweet, innocent girls for no other purpose but to kiss and hug them and then go off in a group of boys and tell it. Is not this possible enough to get a young lady against the habit? While some girls are wise enough to detect such men, there are others who cannot, and I would think long before teaching a doctrine where there was a possibility of a single soul being lost.

Everyone knows of genuine engaged couples with weak will power being lured off through the kissing habit. The Bible teaches us to "flee from the very appearance of evil."

A MOTHER.

My dear mother, you are right, to some extent, but young folks must learn to kiss sometimes and it would be an unnatural girl indeed who would refuse a kiss or a hug to the man she expects to marry, and it would be an unnatural man who would not expect a kiss and a hug now and then.

I have never advocated wholesale kissing and carousing even between engaged people, but I do think that a girl doesn't know, by experience, a man who likes to be a caroused or not by the man she expects to live with all her life, she is entering marriage with her eyes blindfolded.

Marriage is a personal contact fully as much as spiritual union, and though a girl may like a man spiritually, any physical intimacy with him might be repulsive to her. She must learn to know that before marriage because afterward it is too late.

That is why I believe in some hugging and kissing between engaged people, though I do not believe in a girl allowing liberties that will cause her to lose self-respect. Moreover, a man who respects her will not attempt such liberties. If he loves her she is holy to him.

A MOTHER.

My dear mother, you are right, to

As for men getting engaged to girls just so they can hug and kiss and then go tell about it—I am afraid you are right, Mother. There are a good many of these. There for mothers and fathers should be very particular to know all about the young men they allow their daughters to know, and to so keep the love and confidence of their daughters that they may govern their choice of masculine company. A girl who loves and trusts her parents will come to mother or father about everything.

Strengthen your daughter's character and teach your son to respect womanhood. That's a mother's great duty. Then there will be no thought of harm, but a great and beautiful joy in the pretty little caresses of engaged young people—a joy that not one of us who have children would ever wish to deprive our children of when they love and look forward to a happy wedded life.

The KITCHEN CABINET

TO BE a strong hand in the dark to another in the time of need, to be a cup of strength to a human soul in a crisis of weakness, is to know the glory of life.

—Black.

We can measure our sense of right by the strength of our antagonism to wrong.

CHERRY TIME.

Cherry time will soon be with us, so it is well to look up the good things we intend to prepare. If you are a cherry lover, don't fail to put up a few quarts of the rich dark red cherries for the winter dinner table.

Cherry Olives.—Cover the pitted cherries with good vinegar and let stand over night. In the morning drain off the vinegar and weigh the cherries, adding an equal weight of sugar, stirring until it is all dissolved. Cover the jar with a plate and cloth and set away in the fruit cellar. The vinegar and sugar preserves them sufficiently without sugar. The vinegar may be used with sugar to prepare shrub for a summer drink.

Cherry Pudding.—A simple little pudding which may be prepared by using the fresh or canned fruit. Sift a cup of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, and stir in a half to three-fourths of a cup of milk. Butter small cups and drop in a little of the batter, then a tablespoonful of cherries, juice and all, and another spoonful of the batter. Set the cups into a sauce-pan of boiling water, cover closely and cook without uncovering the dish for fifteen minutes. Serve with cream and sugar. If cream is hard to get, thicken the cherry juice, add a bit of butter and serve hot.

A cherry-rolly polly is a dessert that the youngsters are especially fond of, and this may be served with the cherry sauce.

Cherry Pie.—Line a pie plate with a rich crust, fill with carefully seeded fruit, sweeten to taste, sprinkle with a little flour, then add a few bits of butter scattered over it. Wet the edge of the crust and cover with the upper crust, being careful to provide holes for the escape of the steam.

The real secret of a successful cherry pie is the crust and seasoning, as well as careful baking.

FROCK CHARMUSE AND MALINE LACE

Now that school is out what are we mothers going to do with our children? Where is our playground now? We all ought to plan something special for them by way of a reward for being promoted. A little trip to the woods or some other little jaunt.

The children are deserving of a reward. Looking at their report cards do we realize how hard they worked to earn them? Going to school is a "snap" according to some people. Seriously speaking it's about as anything removed from a snap as anything could be.

Now that vacation days are here we mothers should plan to make the most of them and to have the children enjoy them in every legitimate way. I know a mother whose children's vacation days are lived just as systematically as their school days. When school is in session they are given to understanding that each day is a link in their chain that to earn promotion they must each day be present at school, and being present, must give their undivided time and attention to the work in hand.

The vital necessity of an education is early in life explained to them in a way that will make them desire to go to school and take a keen interest in going. When school is finally dismissed for the summer vacation they receive their reward in a little trip, a little spending money to be used as they see fit and some new article of wearing apparel that they especially like. This is a plan that can be put into effect as a period of idleness is the very opposite of wisdom. A far-seeing mother can have them rise at a certain hour, clean up, breakfast, help with the housework, the garden and the yard every forenoon.

The remainder of the day can be put in on recreation, keeping ever in mind the fact that a busy child is a happy child and a good child.

Teach them to construct, not to destruct, in all their childish plays and games. A load of sand under a shady tree will prove a strong magnet to keep them at home.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT

By Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

Not long since I saw a driver delivering bread to one of our best grocery stores. He handled the wrapped bread with the gloves with which he carried, harnessed and drove his horse. When he reached the showcase the bread did not seem to be touched on the door or the counter until he could arrange it. These are only a few of the many things which may be seen every day now in our city.

It does not make one enjoy his food so well when an employee in a well known bakery tells you it is not an uncommon thing to pull a rat out of the molasses barrel and then so on using the molasses. These are not nice things to write; neither is it nice to eat food coming from such a bakery. Rats and mice and cats have no place in our clean grocery stores or bakeries.

The grocery stores of the future will consider the relation of food and its cleanliness to the health of the consumer whether man, woman or child.

Not only keeping everything absolutely clean and free from contamination, but on their shelves they will stand on denatured or doctored so-called "foods." McCann says in his book "Starving America," which every man and woman should read:

"The grocer or baker who trifles with the health of his customers by cleanliness and care with the food on which babies and children depend for life should repent in jail."

Pretty strong terms, but we have sugar-coated much that we have said for years about foods, now we feel sure our live, thinking people will learn and those whom we wish to reach, do not need this pill gilded nor sugar-coated any longer.

They want the truth.

We want honest foods, not denatured ones; clean foods, not dirty ones; our bakeries to bake cakes which contain good eggs, not "egg color," our grocers to sell clean, sanitary wrappers and bottles, at least under cover where people cannot stand and breathe over nor handle them with soiled gloves or fingers. Why waste energy and time making bread clean if it is not kept clean?

There is no danger of flies living in a clean grocery or bakery. This was fully proven to me last year in Paris in such shops where we could not find a fly and further, in the country where sanitary conditions were not equal there were plenty of flies.

Any man or woman who does not understand sanitation and thorough cleanliness has no business at the head of a grocery store, or bakery, (the public which our foods are not delivered or sold to under the cleanest possible conditions.

Things Worth Knowing.

To bake potatoes quickly, clean them and pour boiling water over them. Let them stand on the stove for five or ten minutes, then put them in the oven to bake.

When cooling newly baked bread cover it lightly with a clean cloth.

When papering a room, remember that the patterns and dark colors make the room seem much smaller, and a plain paper, if light, will make it seem larger.

Apples, cored and filled with chopped dates or figs, then baked, make excellent breakfast fruit.

The Table.

Fruit Bread.—Take any kind of canned fruit and thick slices of stale bread. Spread the bread with butter, heat the fruit and syrup. On a platter spread two or three of the slices, pour part of the fruit over them; on this put another layer of bread and hot fruit and so on until the fruit quantity is made. Use plenty of fruit and syrup. The bread must be thoroughly soaked. Set away until very cold, then serve with cream or a plain boiled custard.

Honey Biscuits.—Place in a basin half a pound each of cornmeal and honey, two tablespoonfuls of candied orange flowers and half an egg. Add a spoonful of pounded coriander seeds. Mix these well till they form a stiff paste. Divide into parts, roll these into balls, with a rolling pin, press out into thin ovals, triangles and diamonds. Bake in a shallow tin, over it lay the biscuits on the tin, a short distance from each other and bake in a slow oven. When cooked allow to cool and keep in a tin canister.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.—Butter a shallow baking dish and put in a layer of bread crumbs about half an inch thick, then break over the crumbs as many eggs as will cover them. Grate cheese over the eggs to form a thick layer, season with salt and pepper, dot with bits of butter and pour three quarters of a cupful of cream over all. Bake until the eggs are done and the cheese delicately browned.

Watercress Salad.—Wash the cress well, dry in a clean towel. Chop an onion, a few radishes, one spoonful of grated horseradish. Serve on heart of lettuce leaves with mayonnaise.

Persian Sherbet.—Mash a quart of ripe strawberries in a bowl with a wooden spoon. Add the seeded pulp of a few lemons and a teaspoonful of orange flower water. Over this pour a little more than a quart of water, cover and let stand for three hours. Pour a pound of granulated sugar in a bowl, pour over the juice stir to dissolve sugar, set the bowl on ice for three hours.

Probably I err when I say that I cannot see how a child can possibly help being the reverse of good when they haven't anything to play with, to help keep them busy.

And work and no work makes a dull child who are not to play. All play and no work, no responsibility, will just as surely make a dull child—an unambitious, bold, and wayward child.

The old adage about an idle brain being the devil's workshop might be sometimes seriously considered by all us mothers. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure and there isn't one moment in the entire day when a mother could not be able to say just where her children were and who they were with.

Now this would not entail as much time and work as one would at first imagine. By no means. Simply teach them to report to you as to where they are going and who they will be.

with. You can form this habit when the children are small and it will become part of the daily routine, this reporting to mother. In this way, too, you gain and keep their confidence.

Look at life through children's eyes when dealing with children and if they are not naughty or naughty don't rule with an iron hand.

St. Francis, that splendid teacher, tells us one can catch more flies with a teaspoon of sugar than with a barrel of vinegar.

WOMAN'S TESTIMONY HARD ON DETECTIVES

Mrs. Celia Gallo.

Mrs. Celia Gallo, wife of a confessed and convicted San Francisco bunco man, is proving a valuable witness for the state in its case against the San Francisco police detectives accused of being in league with a gang of bunco men. Her testimony last week helped the state secure a conviction of Detective Asola; and she is relied upon to furnish some damaging evidence against the seven other accused police detectives, who will be tried soon.

U. C. T. DOES HONOR TO LATE SECRETARY

Grave of Fred Vandewater. Decked With Beautiful Floral Design at Direction of Grand Council.

In memory of Fred Vandewater, for six or eight years previous to his death grand secretary of the Wisconsin Commercial Travelers, a beautiful floral design was placed on his grave in Oak Hill cemetery Sunday morning by Grand Chaplain C. B. Evans assisted by several members of the local council. This tribute was made at the direction of the grand council which in their annual convention here the first of the month made an appropriation for the purpose. Mr. Vandewater held the high esteem of the travelers throughout the state and yesterday's ceremony was a fitting recognition of his services. The design completely covered the grave, a large white ribbon bore the inscription, Grand Council of Wisconsin, and on the cross bar were the letters, U. C. T.

Don't Be A Goop

Why do Brewers of Germany and England use only Brown Bottles?

Sunlight grows the hops, but spoils the brew.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives best protection against light.

In England and Germany the brewers won't use light glass bottles.

"Beer should not be exposed to the light, especially direct sunlight, as it will thereby be detrimentally affected, the light having an influence upon the albuminoids in the beer, causing the latter to become hazy."

The well-known table beverage, POSTUM now comes in

New Form

Called

Instant Postum

A delicious drink—absolutely free from the coffee drug, caffeine.

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

The Argyle Case

A Novelization by J. W. McConaughy of the Successful New Play by Harriet Ford, Harvey J. O'Higgins and Detective William J. Burns, in which Robert Hilliard is Appearing ::

Copyright, 1912, by Journal-American-Examiner.

Before Kayton had organized his own agency he had been assigned as a government operative to run down an issue of counterfeit bills of large denominations. He made no brilliant strokes—no spectacular coups of reasoning.

Young Manning Continued to Gaze About.

He worked hard. He stuck to the trail and week by week and month by month he followed it until it led into the office of the federal district attorney and United States marshal of one of the largest cities in the United States. Here a weak man would have hesitated and said that while two and two make four, ordinarily, in this case two and two must make four and a half. But Kayton didn't. He knew that he had followed the one trail, and he continued to follow until, when they were arrested, the two officials confessed. He had only adhered to the axiom that nothing which is logical is impossible. If the evidence pointed that way he would investigate an archbishop with as little hesitation as he would an arch forger.

This was the man that old Finley regarded so sourly as he gazed out into the garden off the library windows and surveyed the rear elevations of the neighboring houses. Manning addressed the old butler first.

"I suppose the police from headquarters have been over everything. Is this the way the furniture was found?"

"One chair was lying on its back," growled the butler. Manning thought swiftly.

"Hm! I wonder how that happened," he murmured.

"If you knew that and had your supper you could go to bed," growled the old servant. Manning grinned.

"You're Irish, eh?" Kayton came back from the window and appraised the stubborn old man quickly and silently.

"You're a great detective, Joe," he said grimly. Then he addressed Finley with studied courtesy.

"Can you put that chair the way it was?"

"I cannot," responded the old man promptly.

"The body was lying on its side, was it?" pursued Kayton calmly.

"That's as maybe," grunted Finley. Manning was unable to restrain himself.

"You're a great detective, Joe," he said grimly.

self at this cavalier treatment of his revered chief.

"Say, you better open up!" he snarled. "You may be banged on this case yourself yet!"

The butler snorted contemptuously. "I'll will you me wits then," he retorted, moving toward the door.

"You'll be needin' 'em."

"What's his name?" demanded Kayton in a whisper.

"Finley," replied Manning in the same guarded tone. Kayton raised his voice.

"Joe, get Mr. Finley in here," he commanded. "He's the man that can help us."

"Why, he's Finley," replied Manning. The old servant stopped and turned. Kayton approached him eagerly.

"Are you Mr. Finley?" he demanded. That personage swelled his chest.

"I am," he declared importantly.

"Well! Why didn't you tell us that at first?" Kayton's tone was a marvel of cordiality and reproach. "I understand your confidential relations with the household and with Mr. Argyle, and young Mr. Argyle tells me that you're in a position to be of the greatest assistance to us."

The old butler's face told of a struggle between completely gratified vanity and general indignation over the whole situation. His next remark was a mixture of the two.

"Well, sir, I can tell you this," he declared. "I lay no great store by detectives."

"You're quite right," agreed Kayton in hearty sympathy.

"A class of men with so little intelligence that they would put suspicion on Miss Mary!" went on Finley indignantly, at the same time subtly making it clear that he excluded Kayton from the general condemnation. "They're beyond the assistance of any honest man."

"Did you try to help them?" inquired Kayton.

"Help them?" exploded the old man. "Man alive, how can you come between a fool and his folly? They'd hear no word from me. Their minds—what they had of 'em—were all set on one thought."

"Well, Mr. Finley," said Kayton soothingly, "that's the very reason we're here. Now tell us the facts as you know them. You found the body?"

"I did not," returned Finley instantly, with some traces of his indignation, but with a manifest change of attitude toward the new investigator. "I was quiet in my bed when the man—Andy—boasted in on me. 'He's dead,' he says, 'stark dead on the sure in there!'

"Who's dead?" I says. 'Mr. Argyle,' says he."

"Who's Andy?" interrupted Kayton.

"Dan Scully's boy," replied Finley. "Him that—"

"How long's he been here?"

"Time 'out o' mind, nearly as long as myself."

"What does he do?"

"He makes himself useful when I tell him. He's a simple soul," added the old man in the manner of one speaking of the feeble minded.

"Send for him," said Kayton curtly. Old Finley promptly rang the bell.

"Who else was in the house?" went on the detective. Finley wrinkled his forehead and ticked off the inmates on his fingers.

"Myself, Miss Mary, the girl, Kitty, Topp, the footman and the cook," he replied. "Mrs. Wyatt was away. Mr. Bruce, Mr. Argyle's son, was here for dinner that night and went away early."

"Did you see him go?" asked Kayton swiftly, with a keen glance at the old man's face.

"I did not. By 11 o'clock I made fast for the night, with Mr. Argyle sitting here and Miss Mary in her chamber. And how they got in that did this that's the thing for you to learn, sir. But when they done it they went out that door, for I found the small chain off and the bolt drawn in the morning. And let me tell you this, sir, went on Finley, his indignation rising again. "There's nothin' but wickedness in this doubt o' Miss Mary. There's things in nature and things that are not—Andy, come in here!"

A tall, shambling young man, with a highly nervous manner, clad in the blue denim of the workman, who had appeared at the hall door while Finley was talking, shuffled reluctantly forward in obedience to the command, smoothing down his stringy black hair with both hands as he advanced. Kayton glanced at him, but continued to address the butler.

"Did Andy come first to you?"

"He did," nodded Finley. "And it was me that roused Miss Mary. When we found he was dead she got Mr. Bruce and the doctors here straight away, and they got the police, and from that it began—trouble without end. Reporters besiegin' us and no man above suspicion—and slanders in the papers on all of us, with photographs of this and that and pictures out of their own fancy, and the public in its innocence perverted."

"Did you hear anything in the night?" Kayton broke in abruptly, addressing the newcomer. Andy gazed apprehensively about the room and shook his head.

"Trust him to hear anything," put in Finley.

"What time did you go to bed?" went on Kayton.

Andy fidgeted and looked appealingly at his master.

"He don't know, sir," Finley explained. "He don't live by the clock. He goes to bed by habit and gets up by habit."

Kayton shrugged his shoulders slightly and turned to the old butler again. "Suppose you two arrange this furniture the way you found it that morning."

But it was the old butler who did it. Andy followed him about in apparent willingness to help, but the atmosphere of the room seemed to have a numbing effect on his muscles.

Finley solemnly, with many pauses for reflection, moved the chairs out of the military order and pushed them about the floor, overturning one near the table. Andy zealously avoided that particular spot.

"They were all wheeled about every which way," the butler explained as he finished his task. "Nothin' was as it should be. He made a hard fight to defend himself, God help us before they put death to him."

Kayton nodded abstractedly. He was studying the new arrangement of the chairs.

"Where was the body—there?" he indicated a spot between the table and the overturned chair.

"It was," declared Finley. "An' the pistol yonder." He indicated a spot at a considerable distance from the chair.

"Lying on his back?" went on Kayton reflectively.

"On his back, but a little to one side," corrected Finley. "With the tablecloth clutched in his hand. Andy, lay yourself down there and show the officer."

Andy started to obey almost mechanically. Then he stopped with a start and drew back, with the first words he had spoken since he had entered the library.

"Not me!" he protested in a trembling voice that did not conceal a richer brogue than Finley's. "There's bad luck to it!"

"Never mind that," interposed Kayton. "Was the tablecloth dragged from the table?"

"About halfway, sir," answered the butler. "And some books on top of him."

Kayton lifted the heavy tapestry cover and peered closely at the polished wood.

"When was this cover put back?" he asked suddenly.

Finley scratched his chin and came nearer.

"That's hard to say, sir," he said. Kayton straightened up and his face was grave.

"Let's see if we've got anything here, Joe."

"It may be very important," he said in a low tone that instantly impressed the old servant with a new sense of his responsibilities.

"Well," Finley was thinking hard. "I mind I was straightening the room when one o' the doctors come in and he stopped me until the coroner should come, but I had already put back the cloth an' the books."

"Has it been touched since?"

"It has not." A quick gleam passed over Kayton's face and was gone in an instant. "Not so much as dusted," Finley assured him. Kayton nodded and dismissed Andy. Finley apologized for the young man's behavior.

"That's all right," the detective told him. "I want to see the footman, Mr. Finley."

Dinner Stories

Miss Helen Gould (now that she is Mrs. Finley J. Shepard) may sometimes think, perhaps, of an Easter party that she once gave to some poor little girls at her country house at Irvington.

At this party Miss Gould showed her juvenile guests the treasures of her house: her pictures, her tapestries, her carved Italian chests, her rare books. She also showed them a beautiful statue, saying

"And here, my dears, is a statue of Minerva—a modern French masterpiece."

"Was Minerva married?" a little girl asked.

"No, my child," Miss Gould answered. "Minerva was the goddess of wisdom."

The new minister in a Georgia church was delivering his first sermon. The negro janitor was a critical listener from a back corner of the church. The minister's sermon was eloquent and his prayers seemed to cover the whole category of human wants. After the service one of the deacons asked the old negro what he thought of the new minister.

"Don't you think he offers up a good prayer, Joe?"

"Ah, mos' shtainly does 'boss. Why, dat man ave de Lord 'n' do things dat de pooder preacher didn't even know He had!"

Carry Flint.

The Norfolk peasants always regard pointed flints as thunderbolts. So consistent are the simple folks that they will often assure you that they picked them up red hot. They carry flints and stone arrow heads about with them in the belief that this custom will prevent them being struck by lightning.

Faith.

By our own faith we can only move mountains; by the faith that others put in us, we may move the world.—Sarah Grand.

Aliens.

A man's world always, this has been—everything arranged for men—and the women are foreigners.

FAIR MINDED PHYSICIANS

recognize the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do not hesitate to prescribe it. A woman from St. Cloud, Minn., says she was led to take it because she learned that her doctor's daughter had been taking it with most excellent results. This is another link in the long chain of evidence to prove the reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for women. Advertisement.

One Man or Boy, Alone, Can Run This Avery Plow Outfit

You don't need any plowman with an Avery "Self-Lift" Engine Plow. The plows are loaded entirely by hand taken from the plow wheels. Pull a cord at the ends of the turrows and the plows lift out of the ground—turn around, pull the cord again and they drop back in.

This wonderful Avery "Self-Lift" Engine Plow puts all the Hand Lever Plows all out of date. Saves you the wages and board of a plowman. Saves you all the hard, back-breaking work of lifting and lowering the plows by hand levers, at the end of each furrow.

And with an Avery "Self-Lift" attachment you don't even have to touch the tractor-storing wheel from one end to the other. Just sit there and watch the outfit run. Plowing is certainly play with an Avery "Self-Lift" Tractor and "Self-Lift" Plow.

Get Tractor Farming Facts, Free. Learn the facts about Tractor Farming. The Avery "Self-Lift" Engine Plow tells you about them. Also tells about the wonderful "Light-Weight" Tractor and "Self-Lift" Plow.

Why are they the simplest Tractors built? Explains all about the Avery Mutual Benefit Selling Plan of Sold on Approved Terms, Strong Guarantees and Low Prices.

Want Ads That Pay

It's well worth while to devote a few minutes' time to the writing of a classified advertisement. Too many of these small ads only half express the thought that is intended and the failure of the ad to bring results follows.

The line, "For Sale, A house in First Ward," may mean anything from a chicken house to a flat building and the very indefiniteness of the advertisement will tend to keep people from answering.

If you have a house for sale, give the full details, tell whether it is large or small, give the number of rooms, tell of its location, improvements, what condition it is in and the price and if it is desirable you may be sure of securing prospective buyers. And you will just as surely have eliminated a lot of answers that would have been worthless.

Example:

FOR SALE—A modern, seven-room dwelling in Second Ward, four blocks from business section, nice lawn, shade and some fruit, a bargain at $2500. Terms if desired, X, care Gazette.

FOR RENT—Heated flats, S. D. Grubb. 11-6-7-10-11.
